

High Income portfolio

Quarterly update - October 2020

Portfolio Manager

James Kempster
Manager since September 2019

Portfolio objective

To provide a higher level of income than our benchmark and a long-term capital return to protect the real value of the capital.

Investment approach

The objective is achieved by using an investment approach balanced between fixed interest securities and UK and international equity, allowing the portfolio to benefit from higher levels of income and also the potential for protection from inflation. The performance of all the funds in the portfolio is constantly monitored and formally reviewed on a quarterly basis by an investment committee.

Portfolio manager's commentary

The portfolio was broadly flat over the quarter as some positive performance in global equities was undermined by returns on the UK allocation. The challenge continues to be balancing the generation of a long-term capital return along with a natural income. Some holdings were able to achieve the latter while struggling with the former.

In this respect, the yield on the portfolios has fallen again slightly as a result of companies which have cut or cancelled their dividends. It appears that this trend is beginning to turn with firms paying "catch up" dividends where they took a safety first approach earlier in the year. However, with central banks appearing set on ultra low interest rates for at least the next few years, bond yields are likely to remain low for some time.

The main change this quarter is the removal of the Threadneedle Property fund which we have replaced with an uncorrelated absolute return fund which has an income focus. Full details of the changes being recommended are outlined on the Fund Changes summary which is available on our website.

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments and any income from them may fall as well as rise; you may get back less than the amount invested. Higher volatility investments are subject to sudden and large falls in value and could result in a loss equal to the sum invested. Certain investments (e.g. property) are not readily realisable and investors may experience difficulty in realising the investment or in obtaining reliable information on the value or associated risks. Changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of investments denominated in currencies other than Sterling.
